PREFACE

This report presents the results of a detailed Air Force Occupational Survey of the Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter special duties (SDIs 83R0 and 8R000). Authority for conducting occupational surveys is contained in AFI 36-2623. Computer products upon which this report is based are available for the use of operations and training officials.

The survey instrument was developed by Ms Lauri Odness, with computer programming support furnished by Ms. Jeanie Guesman. Ms. Raquel A. Soliz provided administrative support. First Lieutenant Jeff Voetberg, Occupational Analyst, analyzed the data and wrote the final report. This report has been reviewed and approved by Mr. Joseph A. Bergmann, Chief, Management Applications Section, Occupational Analysis Flight, AF Occupational Measurement Squadron (AFOMS).

Copies of this report are distributed to Air Staff sections, major commands, and other interested training and management personnel. Additional copies are available upon request to the AF Occupational Measurement Squadron, Attention: Chief, Occupational Analysis Flight (OMY), Randolph AFB, Texas 78150-4449 (DSN 487-6623).

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

1. Survey Coverage: The Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter special duties were surveyed to evaluate changes in the 83R0 and 8R000 special duties and to obtain current task data for use in evaluating current training programs. Results are based on responses from 1,138 respondents. The survey sample accurately reflects the demographics of the assigned population.
2. Specialty Jobs: Six clusters and one independent job were identified in the career area structure analysis. One cluster accounts for 60 percent of the special duty and involves the NPS/PS, health professions, and OTS recruiting. The remaining clusters and job can be categorized as training, staff, or support functions. The jobs are distinct from each other, yet there is a core of general recruiting tasks common to most incumbents. The AFMAN 36-2108 and 36-2105 Specialty Descriptions are complete and generally portray the nature of the job.
3. Career Ladder Progression: First job (1-24 months time in career field (TICF)) personnel devote nearly all their time to recruiting. Like their less experienced counterparts, the 25-48 month TICF personnel spend a majority of their job time on recruiting activities, but also work in other areas. Personnel with 49-96 months TICF work in almost any job. The most experienced personnel (97+ months TICF) work primarily as flight supervisors or superintendents.
4. Training Analysis: Special duty training documents are very well supported by Occupational Survey Report (OSR) data. There is only one area which has low percent members performing in both the POI and the CTS. There are some tasks with high percent members performing which are not referenced in the POI and CTS, though these may be included in other areas.
5. Job Satisfaction: The job satisfaction measures for the survey sample are lower than in the previous sample. The officers in the sample express lower job satisfaction than the enlisted members. Members of the Recruiting Cluster report a lower sense of accomplishment from that job than did other jobs.
6. Implications: The career area structure is very similar to that found in the previous OSR. Career ladder progression is normal, showing a movement away from the technical tasks which account for all of a first-job member's time as the incumbents become more experienced in the special duty. Training documents are very well supported, with a few tasks not referenced to be reviewed. Job satisfaction is lower than in the past, especially the officers.

OCCUPATIONAL SURVEY REPORT (OSR)
RECRUITING SERVICE OFFICER AND RECRUITER SPECIAL DUTIES
(SDIs 83R0 and 8R000)

INTRODUCTION

This is a report of an occupational survey of the Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter special duties conducted by the Occupational Analysis Flight, Air Force Occupational Measurement Squadron. The survey was conducted to obtain current job and task data. Data collected through this Occupational Survey Report will be utilized by training development personnel to review courses and related training documents. The career area was last surveyed as SDIs 0920 and 99500 (Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter). The results are summarized in an OSR dated April 1987.

Background

As described in the AFMAN 36-2108 Specialty Description for SDI 8R000, dated 31 October 1993, Recruiters: develop information sources such as employment agencies, driver's license and job market lists, high school and college student lists, and separation reports, in securing names of potential prospects for active duty enlistment, commissioning, and the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps. Maintain informational records to enable follow-up contacts. Plan and direct sales promotional projects using media such as direct mail, press, radio, and television presentations. Assists and participates in special events such as state and municipal ceremonies, exhibits, fairs, parades, centennials, and sporting events. Ensure proper coordination between the Air Force and MEPS commander and proper scheduling of Air Force applicants to the MEPS is accomplished. Develop and maintain market data, and allocate recruiting goals. Assist in policy development and ensure timely implementation.

According to the AFMAN 36-2105 Specialty Description for SDI 83R0, Recruiting Service Officers: monitor, analyze, train, and provide planning assistance of officer program teams. Track and analyze recruiting operations; identify adverse trends and causes and recommends corrective action. Plan and conduct officer recruiting according to program goals and within constraints of OTS entry capability. Plan and supervise development of advertising and promotion programs to support the mission. Develop, prepare, coordinate, and execute advertising and promotion. Control real estate actions for recruiting offices, itinerary stops, and squadron headquarters. Monitor government services administration vehicle fleet; keep mileage and cost figures. Provide analytical support, market studies, and goal allocation systems.

APPROVED FOR PUBLIC RELEASE; DISTRIBUTION UNLIMITED

All members are required to attend course L3ALR8R000-005, Recruiter, or course L3OLR83R0-001, Recruiting Officer Orientation. The Recruiter course is 6 weeks and a day long, and the Recruiting Officer Orientation course is 1 week long. Both are held at Lackland AFB TX.

SURVEY METHODOLOGY

Inventory Development

The data collection instrument for this occupational survey was USAF Job Inventory (JI) AFPT 90-83R-070. The Inventory Developer prepared a tentative task list by reviewing pertinent publications, directives, and the previous JI and OSR. This task list was further refined and validated through personal interviews with 55 subject-matter experts representing a variety of units at the following locations:

Base	Unit
Randolph AFB	HQ RS
Lowry AFB	367 RCS
Lackland AFB	344 TRS
Milwaukee/Chicago	347 RCS
Lackland AFB	319 TRS
Lackland AFB	369 RCS

The resulting JI contained a comprehensive listing of 668 tasks grouped under 12 duty headings with a background section requesting such information as grade, squadron assigned, job title, time in present job, time in service, job satisfaction, former classification, distance from Squadron Headquarters or MEPS, training completed, and time spent on additional duties.

Survey Administration

Training personnel at recruiting squadron training offices administered the inventory to 2,379 SDI 83R0 and 8R000 personnel. Personnel excluded from taking the survey comprised the following: (1) hospitalized personnel; (2) personnel in transition for a permanent change of station; (3) personnel retiring during the time inventories were administered to the field; and (4) personnel in their job less than 6 weeks. Participants were selected from a computer-generated mailing list obtained from personnel data tapes maintained by the Air Force Personnel Center, Randolph AFB TX.

Each individual who completed the inventory first filled in an identification and biographical information section and then checked each task performed in the member's current job. After checking all tasks performed, respondents then rated each task on a 9-point scale showing relative time spent on that task, as compared to all other tasks checked. The ratings ranged from 1 (very small amount time spent) through 5 (about average time spent) to 9 (very large amount spent).

To determine relative time spent for each task checked by a respondent, all of the incumbent's ratings are assumed to account for 100 percent of the member's time spent on the job. First, the ratings are summed. Each task rating is then divided by the sum of task ratings and multiplied by 100 to provide a relative percentage of time for each task. This procedure provides a basis for comparing tasks in terms of both percent members performing and average percent time spent.

Survey Sample

The final SDI 83R0 and 8R000 survey sample includes responses from 1,138 job incumbents. Table 1 reflects the percentage distribution of assigned SDI 83R0 and 8R000 personnel, as well as the percent in the sample. As of June 1996 there were 2,379 members assigned; 2,196 members were selected for participation in the survey. The 1,138 respondents represent 48 percent of the assigned population, and 52 percent of those surveyed. Table 2 gives the actual numbers of the assigned and surveyed personnel as well as the number in the final sample. The survey sample is proportional within ranks, and reflects the officer-enlisted mix.

Task Factor Administration

Job descriptions alone do not provide sufficient data for making decisions about career area documents or training programs. Task factor information is needed for a complete analysis of the recruiter field. To obtain the needed task factor data, selected senior SDI 83R0 and 8R000 personnel also completed a second booklet for either training emphasis (TE) or task difficulty (TD). These booklets were processed separately from the JIs. This information is used in a number of different analyses discussed in more detail within the report.

Training Emphasis (TE). TE is a rating of the amount of emphasis that should be placed on tasks in initial training. The 36 senior SDI 83R0 officers and 35 8R000 NCOs who completed the TE booklet were asked to select tasks they felt require some sort of structured training for personnel upon entry into recruiting service and then indicate how much TE these tasks should receive, from 1 (extremely low emphasis) to 9 (extremely high emphasis). Structured training is defined as training provided by resident technical schools, field training detachments (FTD), mobile training teams (MTT), formal on-the-job training (OJT), or any other organized training method. Unfortunately the interrater reliability was found to be unacceptably low for the officers who provided TE ratings. The NCOs who responded, however, had excellent agreement as to what tasks should have emphasis in formal training. Therefore, TE data are reported only for enlisted training in this OSR.

Task Difficulty (TD). TD is an estimate of the amount of time the average airman needs to learn to perform a task satisfactorily. The 30 senior NCOs who completed TD booklets were asked to rate the difficulty of each task using a 9-point scale (from 1 to 9). Recruiting service officers were not asked to provide TD ratings. Interrater reliability was calculated and found to be below the requirement. No TD data are included in this OSR.

When used in conjunction with the primary criterion of percent members performing, TE ratings can provide insight into first-enlistment personnel training requirements. Such insights may suggest a need for lengthening or shortening portions of instruction supporting AFS entry-level jobs.

SPECIALTY JOBS (Career Field Structure)

Each Air Force occupational analysis begins with an examination of the career field structure. The structure of jobs within the Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter special duties was examined on the basis of similarity of tasks performed and the percent of time spent ratings provided by job incumbents, independent of other specialty background factors.

Each individual in the sample performs a set of tasks called a Job. A hierarchical grouping program, which is a basic part of the Comprehensive Occupational Data Analysis Program (CODAP) system, creates an individual job description for each respondent (all the tasks performed by that individual and the relative amount of time spent on those tasks). It then compares each job description to every other job description in terms of tasks performed and the relative amount of time spent on each task in the JI. The automated system locates the two job descriptions with the most similar tasks and percent time ratings and combines them to form a composite job description. In successive stages, the system adds new members to the initial group or forms new groups based on the similarity of tasks performed and similar time ratings in the individual job descriptions.

When there is a substantial degree of similarity between jobs, they are grouped together and identified as a Cluster. The job structure resulting from this grouping process (the various jobs and clusters within the career field) can be used to evaluate the accuracy of career ladder documents (Plans of Instruction (POIs) Course Training Standards (CTSs), and AFMAN 36-2105 and AFMAN 36-2108 Specialty Description), and to gain a better understanding of current utilization patterns.

Overview of Specialty Jobs

Based on the similarity of tasks performed and the amount of time spent performing each task, 6 clusters and 1 job were identified within the SDI 83R0 and 8R000 survey sample. A listing of these is provided below and illustrated in Figure 1. The stage (ST) number shown beside each title references computer-generated information; the letter "N" stands for the number of personnel in each group.

- I. RECRUITER CLUSTER (ST0057, N=685)
- II. MILITARY ENTRANCE PROCESSING STATION (MEPS) PERSONNEL CLUSTER (ST0025, N=99)
- III. FLIGHT SUPERVISOR CLUSTER (ST0044, N=116)
- IV. TRAINING PERSONNEL CLUSTER (ST0030, N=57)
- V. OPERATIONS PERSONNEL CLUSTER (ST0023, N=66)
- VI. FLIGHT COMMANDERS AND SUPERINTENDENTS CLUSTER (ST0024, N=50)
- VII. ADVERTISING AND PROMOTIONS JOB (ST0110, N=23)

The respondents forming these groups account for 96 percent of the survey sample. The remaining 4 percent are performing tasks or a series of tasks which do not group with any of the defined jobs. Some job titles these individuals used to describe themselves include: NCOIC Office Procurement, NCOIC Logistics Program, and Health Professions Program Manager.

Group Descriptions

The following paragraphs contain brief descriptions of the jobs identified through the career area structure analysis. Also presented are two tables which reflect the time incumbents spend on duties and selected background data for each group. Table 3 presents the relative time spent by respondents in each job across each duty listed in the JI. Table 4 displays selected background information, such as rank distributions across each group, average of total months in active military service (i.e., Total Active Federal Military Service (TAFMS)), and average number of tasks performed. Responses to the remaining background questions can be found in the computer-generated VARSUM product located in the TRAINING EXTRACT. Appendix A at the back of this OSR lists representative tasks performed by members of each group.

Another way to illustrate these jobs is to summarize tasks performed into groups of tasks (task modules). This allows for a very concise display of where job incumbents spend most of their time and develops a comprehensive overview of each job. Each job or cluster description contains a display of related task modules. This display shows the number of tasks included in a module, the average percent time spent on that module, and an average percentage of members performing the tasks in that module. These modules were identified through CODAP copformance clustering, which calculates the probability that members who perform one task will also perform a second task or group of related tasks. Representative task modules (TMs) are listed as part of the job description. The list of TMs with representative tasks is presented in Appendix B.

I. RECRUITER CLUSTER (ST0057, N=685) Incumbents in this largest cluster perform an average of 99 tasks. Representing 60 percent of the survey sample, these members spend 70 percent of their time on general recruiting tasks, and another 19 percent on enlisted recruiting tasks (see Table 3). Members are junior relative to the rest of the NCOs in the specialty, with an average TAFMS of 163 months, and the predominant paygrade is E-5 (see Table 4). This cluster represents the core of the specialty, and their day-to-day work with prospects distinguishes them from other 83R0 and 8R000 personnel. Examples of tasks performed include:

- Establish rapport with prospects
- Operate vehicles
- Determine primary interests of prospects
- Develop activity plans (i.e., daily, weekly, monthly, yearly)
- Make appointments with prospects
- Explain benefits of the Air Force to prospects or civic groups

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	110	87	77
3	Health Services Recruiting	47	8	16
2	Unusual NPS/PS Recruiting Tasks	13	2	28
4	OTS Recruiting	14	1	8

The above task modules account for virtually all of the member's job time. As seen below, other members spend some time on the tasks of module 1, but in no job do the members spend as much time on those tasks as the members of this cluster. The percentage of job time spent on health services and OTS recruiting is a good reflection of the percentage of cluster members working in those areas, as discussed below.

There were three jobs identified in this cluster. The first job has 502 members and is the heart of the cluster. Members spend 25 percent of their time on nonprior service/prior service (NPS/PS) recruiting. The second job was unique because members spend 21 percent of their time on tasks related to OTS recruiting. This job is the smallest of the three with only 27 members. The 95 members of the third job distinguish themselves by spending 43 percent of their time on tasks related to health professions recruiting.

II. MILITARY ENTRANCE PROCESSING STATION (MEPS) PERSONNEL CLUSTER (ST 0025, N=99) The personnel in this cluster are distinguished by not only the tasks they accomplish, but also by where they work. Ninety-eight percent of incumbents report working in a MEPS and 92 percent reported their job title as MEPS Liaison. Members spend 34 percent of their job time performing classification and processing functions. Members perform an average of only 57 tasks, second fewest of any cluster or job. Members average 184 months TAFMS, and the predominant rank is E-6. There are no commissioned officers in this job. Commonly performed tasks include:

- Clarify, validate, and overcome prospects' objections and concerns
- Compare civilian or other service employment opportunities with Air Force opportunities
- Verify required documents, such as birth certificates, and social security cards
- Submit AETC Forms 1349 (Case File Error Analysis)
- Maintain transportation requests and tickets
- Brief applicants on enlistment processing

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	110	52	23
19	MEPS Processing	42	31	38
7	Coordinating with Outside Agencies	19	2	12
8	Direct Supervision	29	2	7

While the NPS/PS recruiting module accounted for the majority of the incumbent's time, it is the amount of time spent on the MEPS Processing module which really sets this cluster apart. The time spent in modules 7 and 8 reflect the supervision involved in the second job in the cluster, as is discussed below.

There were two jobs identified in the cluster. The first job was notable in that its members spend their time on general activities. Members of this first job described themselves most commonly as Liaison NCOs. The second job was more supervisory in nature, and focused more on specific classification and processing activities, such as reviewing case files. Members of this job commonly called themselves MEPS Supervisors.

III. FLIGHT SUPERVISOR CLUSTER (ST0044, N=116) Members of this cluster are senior enlisted personnel who directly oversee the work of four to nine recruiters. They spend 57 percent of their time on tasks related to flight supervision. Seventy-two percent of incumbents hold the E-7 paygrade, and average 212 months TAFMS. Their work reviewing and analyzing work methods and procedures is what distinguishes this cluster from others. With 116 members, this is the second largest cluster. Some of the 104 tasks performed on average include:

- Review personal interview records (PIR)
- Analyze recruiter planning activities
- Analyze recruiter sales techniques
- Analyze an applicants tracking system for all programs
- Prepare flow and trend analysis report
- Analyze recruiter telephone prospecting techniques

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
6	Flight Supervisor	43	57	91
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	110	24	30
8	Direct Supervision	29	6	23
17	OJT	20	2	11

The vast majority of incumbent's time is spent on tasks related to supervision at the flight level. The percent time spent on the recruiting tasks indicates that these members are also involved in the technical tasks related to recruiting.

The two jobs identified within this cluster varied from each other by the number of tasks performed. The 13 members of the smaller job performed over twice the number of tasks as the members of the larger job.

IV. TRAINING PERSONNEL CLUSTER (ST0030, N=57) Members of this cluster spend 65 percent of their time performing training activities. These personnel perform, on average, 68 tasks and average 201 months TAFMS. The ranks of personnel are predominantly E-6, and E-7 (37 and 42 percent, respectively). Seventy-nine percent of the members of the cluster identified themselves as either Trainer or Trainer Supervisor, while another 9 percent gave Instructor as a job title. Members are distinguished from other 8R000 personnel by their work providing training and performing other tasks supporting training activities. Some representative tasks for the cluster include:

- Conduct field training visits for recruiters
- Conduct on-the-job training (OJT)
- Provide follow-on training
- Conduct training conferences or meetings
- Provide feedback to trainee and training supervisors
- Plan training conferences or meetings

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
17	OJT	20	41	76
18	Formal Training	26	23	40
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	110	15	16
8	Direct Supervision	29	3	7

The division of time between modules 17, 18, and 8 reflect the division between the three jobs found in this cluster, as described below

The first job of the three identified in the cluster is comprised primarily of Trainer Supervisors. These members perform more supervisory activities. The members of the second job identified themselves more as Trainers, and reported less supervision. Members of the final job described themselves as instructors, and most are assigned to the 344 Training Squadron at Lackland AFB.

V. OPERATIONS PERSONNEL CLUSTER (ST0023, N=66) Members of this cluster are defined by their work on operations functions. They spend 71 percent of their time on those tasks. Three percent of the members, or 2 individuals, are commissioned officers. Members perform only 44 tasks on average, the fewest of any cluster or job. The members of this cluster are not generally involved with direct supervision, as only 24 percent indicated they supervise at least one individual. Ninety-one percent indicate working at the squadron level. Some tasks which distinguish this cluster from others include:

- Manage waiver/eligibility determination application processing
- Coordinate job booking with higher headquarters
- Perform credit checks on applicants
- Monitor production programs (i.e., ASVAB testing, waiver applications)
- Advise recruiters of changes to applicant qualification criteria or recruiting policy
- Coordinate with flight supervisor or program manager on processing requirements

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
5	Operations	26	70	61
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	110	13	8
7	Coordinating with Outside Agencies	19	3	11
4	OTS Recruiting	14	2	9

The vast majority of incumbent's time is spent on tasks related to operations. Members spend so much time on those tasks, there is little time left for the other modules. Members do spend some time on the recruiting modules, but it is much less than the other, more technically oriented clusters.

There were three jobs identified in the cluster. The first, and largest, did not vary much from the overall cluster description. The second job contains only 9 members, and is notable because its members perform only 10 tasks on average. The third job involved supervision tasks in addition to the other operations tasks.

VI. FLIGHT COMMANDERS AND SUPERINTENDENTS CLUSTER (ST0024, N=50)
 Members of this cluster spend 38 percent of their time on command, staff, and supervision tasks, and an additional 22 percent on administrative and management tasks. Fifty-four percent, or 27 individuals, are commissioned officers. Members perform an average of 102 tasks, the second highest number. The enlisted members of this cluster average 182 months TAFMS, and the officers have an average of 107 months active commissioned time. These officers are the most senior in the survey sample. Some common tasks for this job include:

- Prepare correspondence (i.e., letters, messages, special reports, staff studies, etc.)
- Prepare EPRs
- Conduct office visits
- Endorse enlisted performance reports (EPR)
- Provide inputs to EPRs or OPRs
- Control or direct recruiting efforts to meet group, squadron, or flight program objectives

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
8	Direct Supervision	29	22	63
10	General Inspections	15	10	51
7	Coordinating with Outside Agencies	19	10	50
13	Equipment and Fiscal Management	25	7	31
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	13	6	7
5	Operations	35	5	16

Members of this cluster spend their time in a larger variety of task modules as compared to the previous clusters. The majority of their time is spent on supervisory and management activities, with only 6 percent spent on recruiting activities. The time spent on module 13 is also unique to this cluster.

Three jobs were identified in this cluster. The first job consists of ten officers in the position of operations flight commander. The second job is comprised of mostly officers who were also flight commanders. However, these officers identified themselves as support flight commanders. The final job is staffed by senior enlisted members who described themselves as superintendents.

VII. ADVERTISING AND PROMOTIONS JOB (ST0110, N=23) Members of this smallest job spend 78 percent of their time on tasks related to advertising and promotions. Five of the 23 members are commissioned officers. The job incumbents are among the least senior. The enlisted members average 166 months TAFMS, the second lowest, and the officers average only 47 months commissioned time, the lowest. Some representative tasks for this cluster include:

- Monitor advertising and publicity needs
- Implement an advertising program
- Establish media relations
- Conduct recruiter, flight supervisor, and program manager advertising and promotion training
- Conduct television station visits
- Conduct local paid advertising programs

Representative task modules for this cluster include:

TM	Module Title	Number of Tasks	% Time Spent	% Members Performing
16	Advertising	64	78	82
1	NPS/PS Recruiting	13	11	11
7	Coordinating with Outside Agencies	19	2	14

Members of this job are clearly defined by the time spent on the advertising TM. No other members spend any time on those tasks. Their focus on advertising leaves only small amounts of time for any other tasks.

Comparison of Current Jobs to Previous Survey Findings

The results of the specialty job analysis were compared to those of the last Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter OSR published in 1987. With some variance in the job titles between the two studies, the tasks that personnel performed in the previous OSR are generally found in the current study. As shown in Table 5, with only one exception, the jobs identified previously were also identified in this study. The Classification job found in the last study did not break out as a separate job in the current study; the tasks performed were instead found in the MEPS Personnel Cluster. In the previous study, all supervisory personnel were found in one cluster, whereas in this study they were in two clusters. However, the specific jobs in the clusters mirror each other very closely. Overall there has been very little change in the job breakdown since 1987.

Summary

The six clusters and one job identified in the current study describe the core of the special duty, as well as the other jobs which support the recruiting. The clusters and job clearly differentiate between the different functions performed by personnel in the recruiter field. There

ANALYSIS OF TICF GROUPS

An analysis of time in career field (TICF) groups, in conjunction with the analysis of the career ladder structure, is an important part of the OSR. The TICF analysis identifies differences in tasks performed at the various experience levels. This information may be used to evaluate how well career ladder documents, such as the POI and the AFMAN 36-2108 Specialty Description reflect what career ladder personnel are actually doing in the field.

The distribution of TICF groups across the various jobs is displayed in Table 6, while Table 7 offers another perspective by displaying the relative percent time spent on each duty across the TICF groups.

TICF Group Descriptions

1-24 Months TICF Group. The 299 airmen in this group, representing 27 percent of the enlisted survey sample, spend all of their job time on general recruiting and NPS/PS recruiting functions (see Table 7.) Ninety-eight percent are working in the Recruiter Cluster, with no other cluster or job having more than 1 percent of group members (see Table 6). The focus of their job is shown by Table 8, which lists representative tasks performed by first job members. Most tasks listed relate to Duty A, Recruiting - General Functions, and the rest come from Duty B, Recruiting - Enlisted.

25-48 Months TICF Group. The 280 airmen in this group represent 26 percent of the enlisted survey sample. These members spend a majority of their time on general recruiting activities, but less time on enlisted recruiting and an increased amount of time on health professions and OTS recruiting. As with the 1-24 months TICF personnel, the largest percentages of these incumbents are working in the Recruiter Cluster. However, members of this group are found in other jobs, notably the MEPS Personnel Cluster and the Operations Personnel Cluster. Time in duties show an increase of time spent on duties other than recruiting. (See Table 7).

Representative tasks performed by 25-48 months TICF incumbents are listed in Table 9. Table 10 reflects those tasks which best differentiate the 1-24 months TICF personnel from their 25-48 month TICF counterparts. The Tables show that the members of the more experienced group perform many of the same tasks as their more junior counterparts. The fact that there are no tasks performed more commonly by the 25-48 month TICF group shows the diversity of the tasks performed at that level. It also shows that the tasks not related to production recruiting are not performed by large numbers of the 25-48 month TICF group. While there are some differences between the two groups, they are still very similar in terms of tasks performed.

49-96 Months TICF Group. These 233 personnel represent 21 percent of the enlisted members included in the survey sample. These members continue to spend their time on a variety of tasks, even more so than their junior counterparts. After general recruiting tasks, members spend the largest percentage of their time on OTS recruiting tasks. Members of this TICF group are found in every job except the Flight Commanders and Superintendents Cluster.

Table 11 lists the most common tasks performed by the members of this group. Most of these involve general recruiting tasks, although they are performed by smaller percentages for this group. Table 12 shows those tasks which best differentiate between the 25-48 months TICF and 49-96 months TICF groups. The tasks with the largest differences in percent members performing relate to NPS/PS recruiting. The table also indicates that no tasks favored the 49-96 months TICF personnel by as much as 20 percent. This suggests that the more senior members are more spread out across a wide variety of activities, and therefore do not have high percent members performing any particular task

97+ Months TICF Group. The 271 members of this group represent 25 percent of the enlisted members in the survey sample. These individuals spend a greater amount of time on supervisory activities than the members of any other TICF group. Members spend 18 percent of their job time on flight supervisor tasks, another 11 percent of their time on training activities. The members of this TICF group are found most commonly in the Flight Supervisor Cluster. This is also the only TICF group with members in the Flight Commanders and Superintendents Cluster.

Table 13 lists the most commonly performed tasks for this group. The general recruiting tasks are the most common, but even these suggest more supervision than the other groups. Table 14 shows which tasks best show the differences between this group and the 49-96 month TICF group. The tasks performed more commonly by the 97+ month group again emphasize their role in management and supervision.

Summary

Progression in this special duty follows the pattern typically seen in other Air Force Specialties. When members first arrive in the special duty their time is spent almost exclusively on enlisted recruiting. As members gain experience, they spend more and more time in other areas and less time on actual recruiting tasks. Members entering the special duty work almost exclusively in the Recruiter Cluster. Members who have been in the special duty between 2 and 4 years are still predominately found in the Recruiter Cluster, though they work in some other jobs as well. Members with 49-96 months TICF can be found in almost any job, most notably the MEPS Personnel Cluster and the Operations Personnel Cluster. The most experienced members are most likely to be in a supervisory or management role.

ANALYSIS OF TIME IN UTILIZATION FIELD (TIUF) GROUPS

As for TICF groups, analysis of TIUF groups can lend insight into differences between officer experience groups. In this case, over half of the 83R0 personnel in the sample have 2 years or less in the special duty. The remaining officers are too few to allow a detailed analysis, therefore only information on the 1-24 months TIUF group is presented.

Figure 2 shows the distribution of 1-24 months TIUF personnel across the jobs found, and Table 15 gives the relative time spend by these members in each of the duty areas. As seen in Figure 2, sixty-five percent of group members are in the Flight Commanders and Superintendents Cluster in the position of flight commander. Thirteen percent of first job members in the special duty are in the Advertising and Promotions Job, and another 4 percent are in the Operations Personnel Cluster. This distribution of personnel in jobs is also seen in where members are spending their job time. Members spend a total of 63 percent of their job time on the tasks in the last three duties. These tasks are the tasks performed by members of the Flight Commanders and Superintendents Cluster. Another 15 percent of job time is spent on the tasks of duty H, Advertising and Promotion Functions, with 10 percent spent on the tasks of duty I, Operations Functions. Table 15 shows the percent time spent for all duties for this group.

Table 16 presents the most common tasks for the 1-24 month TIUF personnel. This table is consistent with the above results as well. The most common tasks administrative, management, and supervisory activities. There are also a few tasks relating to advertising.

ANALYSIS OF AFMAN 36-2108 AND AFMAN 36-2105

Survey data were compared to the descriptions for the Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter special duties found in Air Force Manuals 36-2108 and 36-2105, effective 31 October 1993, and 1995, respectively. These descriptions are intended to provide a broad overview of the duties and responsibilities of each special duty. In general, the description covers tasks and jobs performed by special duty personnel.

AFMAN 36-2105 Recruiting Service Officer Description

There are five specific duties and responsibilities listed in addition to the special duty summary. They are:

1. Performs operations duties.
2. Acts as officer training school (OTS) procurement officer.
3. Plans and supervises development of advertising and promotion programs to support the mission.
4. Manages recruiting resources.
5. Manages Headquarters USAF Recruiting Service activities.

The first four areas are well covered by survey data when the percent of job time spent on tasks by the 42 officers in the sample is used as the criteria. Tasks related to the examples in each of those four areas are performed by large numbers of officers in the sample, and they spend considerable time on those tasks as well.

The fifth area however, had mixed support. There were a few example items for which there were no related tasks performed by the officers in the sample. One item, "Provides analytical support, market studies, and goal allocation systems," was had related tasks performed by members of the Operations Personnel Cluster, but this cluster is composed primarily of enlisted members with some officers. Another item, "Provides specialized management, sales, and motivational training through workshops and a traveling training team," was also not supported by the officer data, but was supported by the members of the Training Personnel Cluster. This cluster is exclusively comprised of NCOs. On the other hand, there were items in this last area which were supported by the officer group data. In general, these deal with coordinating with other agencies such as the Air Force Personnel Center, developing plans to support assignment and manpower, and planning and managing advertising and special events.

AFMAN 36-2108 Recruiter Description

There are also five specific duties and responsibilities listed for the Recruiter special duty, after the summary. They are:

1. Conducts recruiting program.
2. Develops publicity program.
3. Develops community relations programs.
4. Performs Military Entrance Processing Station (MEPS) liaison and production management duties.
5. Supervises recruiting activities.

The first and third areas, and their specific examples represent the core of the recruiter special duty. Tasks related to the fourth and fifth areas are performed in large numbers by the members of the MEPS Personnel Cluster and Flight Supervisor Cluster, respectively. Tasks related to the second area are performed by members of the Advertising and Promotions Job, which is comprised of both officers and NCOs.

With only a few exceptions, both special duty descriptions accurately reflect the work done in the special duties. This is especially true when looking at the tasks performed by members of specific job groups. There are no tasks or areas which are not covered by one of the above duties and responsibilities.

TRAINING ANALYSIS

Occupational survey data represent one of many sources of information which are used to assist in the development of training programs for career ladder personnel. OSR data useful to training personnel include job descriptions for the various jobs performed within a career ladder, distribution of personnel across career ladder jobs, percentages of personnel performing specific tasks, as well as the difficulty of tasks and TE ratings gathered from senior members of the career ladder.

TE and TD Data

TE is a secondary factor that can help technical school personnel decide which entry-level training tasks to emphasize. These ratings, based on the judgments of senior career ladder NCOs at operational locations, provide training personnel with a rank ordering of those tasks considered important for first-enlistment airman training (TE). When combined with data on the percentages of first-job (1-24 months TICF) personnel performing tasks, comparisons can be made to determine if training adjustments are necessary. For example, tasks receiving high TE ratings accompanied by moderate to high percentages performing, may warrant resident training. Those tasks receiving high TE ratings but low percentages performing may be more appropriately planned for OJT programs within the career ladder. Low TE ratings may highlight tasks best omitted from training for first-enlistment personnel. This decision must be weighed against percentages of personnel performing the tasks, command concerns, and criticality of the tasks.

Table 17 lists the tasks having the highest TE ratings. The percentages of first-job (1-24 months in the special duty) personnel and all enlisted members are also included for each task. The majority of tasks with high training emphasis are performed by over ninety percent of first-job members. The highest rated jobs deal with recruiting in general and with NPS/PS recruiting in particular. Due to the unreliability of the TE ratings for the officers and the enlisted TD ratings, these are not reported in this OSR.

Various lists of tasks, accompanied by TE ratings, are contained in the TRAINING EXTRACT package and should be reviewed in detail by technical school personnel. For a more detailed explanation of TD and TE ratings, see the Task Factor Administration in the SURVEY METHODOLOGY section of this report.

Plan of Instruction (POI)

In November 1996, training personnel from Lackland Air Force Base matched tasks in the JI to appropriate sections of the POI. A listing of the POI was then produced showing each POI paragraph and subparagraph, tasks matched, and percent criterion group members performing. This listing is included in the Training Extract sent to the school for review. Criteria set forth in AETC Instruction 36-2601 were used to review the relevance of each POI paragraph and subparagraph with matched tasks. Any POI paragraph or subparagraph with matched tasks performed by 30 percent or more of first-job (1-24 months TICF) members is considered to be supported and should be retained in the POI. There was only one POI paragraph which was not supported by the matched job inventory task. POI paragraph I.4a reads: "Given access to a PROMIS II computer system demonstrate basic operational skills IAW Rating Scale." The matched task, F0267, reads "Operate Procurement Management Information System (PROMIS) data communications network." This task was performed by only 5 percent of all 8R000 personnel, and not at all by members with 1-24 months time in the special duty. POI block I.4 should be closely examined in its entirety.

Tasks not matched to any POI element are listed at the end of the POI computer listing. According to the criteria listed in AETC Instruction 36-2601, tasks with a percent members performing greater than 30 percent for either first-job or first-enlistment personnel should be examined closely for inclusion in the POI. There were a few tasks which had greater than 30 percent members performing which were not referenced to the POI. These are listed in Table 18. The majority of the tasks are general in nature, and may inherent in other tasks.

Course Training Standard (CTS)

At the same time the POI was matched to the task list, the CTS was also matched in the same way. The criteria described above were also used to evaluate the CTS. Because of the close connection between the CTS and the POI, the results of this analysis are nearly identical to those above. Paragraph 7 in the CTS was matched to task F0267 which was performed by few members of the survey sample. The tasks not referenced to the CTS were also very similar to those found in Table 18.

JOB SATISFACTION ANALYSIS

An examination of responses to the job satisfaction questions can give career field managers a better understanding of some of the factors which may affect the job performance of airmen and officers in the recruiting field. The survey booklet included questions covering job interest, perceived utilization of talents and training, sense of accomplishment from work, and reenlistment intentions. The responses of the current survey sample were then analyzed by making some comparisons: (1) between the officers, enlisted personnel, and the total sample; (2) between the current and previous survey officer and enlisted groups; and (3) across specialty groups identified in the SPECIALTY JOBS section of the report.

Table 19 displays the total sample, officer, and enlisted groups for the current survey as well as the results from the previous survey in 1989. In all cases the responses from the current group of incumbents are lower than in the previous survey. In particular, the reported sense of accomplishment received from work is 9 percent lower for the total sample. The officer group had lower expressed job satisfaction in all cases when compared to the enlisted group. Perceived use of training, especially, was 19 percent lower for the officer group. This result was not found in the last survey, when the officers were within two percent of the enlisted group for all ratings.

An examination of job satisfaction data can also reveal the influences performing certain jobs may have on overall job satisfaction. Table 20 presents job satisfaction data for the jobs identified in the career field structure for SDIs 83R0 and 8R000. Consistent with the above results, one cluster, Flight Commanders and Superintendents, was lower than the other jobs on two job satisfaction indicators, and among the lowest on the others. This cluster contains the bulk of the officers in the survey sample who expressed lower job satisfaction. The Recruiter Cluster did express the lowest sense of accomplishment from the job. An examination of some of the write-in comments revealed that many members of this cluster feel somewhat bogged down in paperwork, leaving too little time for recruiting tasks. This could be a contributing factor in their lower sense of accomplishment.

IMPLICATIONS

As explained in the INTRODUCTION, this survey was conducted primarily to provide training personnel with current information on the Recruiting Service Officer and Recruiter field for use in reviewing current training programs and training documents. Overall job progression is similar to that seen in Air Force specialties and shows a trend as one gains experience in the special duty. AFMAN 36-2108 and 36-2105 Specialty Description broadly describe the jobs and tasks being performed, with only two areas which do not exactly reflect survey data. Job satisfaction is lower than seen in past, and the officers surveyed responded lower than the enlisted members. Analysis of career ladder documents indicate the CTS and POI are well supported by survey data, with some general tasks not referenced.

APPENDIX B

LISTING OF TASK MODULES AND TASK STATEMENTS

These Task Modules (TMs) were developed in order to organize and summarize the extensive task information for this specialty. The TMs were developed by clustering tasks which are coperformed by the same incumbents. Coperformance is a measure of how probable a task will be performed with another task, based upon the responses of surveyed personnel. For example, if an individual performs one budgeting task, the probability is very high that he or she will perform other budgeting tasks. Thus, the group of budgeting tasks can be considered a "natural group" of associated or related tasks (see TM 0007 below). The statistical clustering generally approximates these "natural groupings."

The title of each TM is a best estimate as to the generic subject content of the group of tasks. The TMs are useful for organizing the task data into meaningful units and as a way to concisely summarize the extensive job data. However, TMs are only one way to organize the information. Other strategies may also be valid.
